Programmes and services

AnDY Clinic

AnDY is a research clinic based at the University of Reading that specialises in assessing and treating anxiety and depression. They offer diagnostic assessment of anxiety and depression and following this, provide evidence-based treatments for the main problem. These treatments are based on cognitive behaviour therapy and follow what the research says is effective for treating anxiety and depression in young people.

Slough Early Help Hub have began working collaboratively with The ANDY Clinic and have a referral model in place for 7-18 year olds who are suffering from lower level (not specialist CAMHS threshold) anxiety and depression with a staged offering in place.

Access to Anxiety and depression interventions. Referral taken directly through Early Help Offer.

Specialist CAMHS

Supporting young people with emotional wellbeing and mental health is everyone's responsibility and most young people should be able to access help early on through services in their school or community. For those young people whose difficulties develop into something more serious, the CCG commission Berkshire Health Care Foundation Trust (BHFT) to deliver specialist CAMHS services across Berkshire. This service works with children and young people who are experiencing significant and severe difficulties with their mental health. Usually these difficulties will have been occurring over several months and will not have responded to interventions from early help and support but specialist CAMHS will also support children and young people experiencing a mental health crisis which may have developed really quickly.

All referrals to the service come through CPE, which is part of the multi-disciplinary referral hub for all BHFT children's services. Skilled clinicians in this team gather additional information about the referral, assess level and immediacy of clinical risk and determine the most appropriate service to support a young person's needs.

Clinician will refer on to the specialist pathways/teams or another more appropriate service.

Resources

Healthy Choices Programme

The Programme introduces key 'blocks' of knowledge during primary phase to develop a framework for decision-making built upon an understanding of 'choice'. These building blocks explore how identity is formed, how we're influenced by those around us, and the impact that basic psychological needs (to survive, have power, love and belong, be free to choose, and have fun/learn/grow) have upon our choices.

PSHE Association Resources

The NSPCC and the PSHE Association have been working together to develop resources that will help teachers all over the UK to deliver relationships education effectively. In this blog we'll be sharing what we've learnt along the way and offering advice for schools about delivering what can be a challenging subject.
