Nosey Teas

The best way to get to know the Slough Nursery Schools is by coming to visit. 'Nosey Teas' provide an opportunity for NQTs, Early Years Practitioners, teachers and childminders to make an informal visit to have a look around. Following the visit if you would like to return during a session to find out more, please contact the nursery directly.

Some 10 years ago, the core teaching staff at our nursery school visited the infant-toddler centres and pre-schools in Reggio Emilia, northern Italy. Our reflection on the practice there has influenced our provision here today. Our purpose built nursery school (February 2016) used a Reggio inspired design brief with an emphasis on the environment as the third teacher.

Our provision includes designation as a resource base for children diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder and have appropriately trained staff for working with these children. We also provide for two year olds (with experienced staff working with this age range) and the thirty hours' agenda.

We are an attachment aware school and our Family Support Worker is a valued resource for the children their families. Since 2013 we have used the Leuven scales to record and monitor the children's levels of Wellbeing and Involvement. Through providing enabling environments and planning in the moment, we support children to become independent learners. We have a Level 3 qualified Forest School practitioner and a Wildlife Area, with a pond and our own beehives. The children take part in regular visits to Burnham Beeches on our mini-bus.

We are a nursery school in the heart of Chalvey community. We have a 2year old provision, 3 and 4 year old provision and an assessment unit for children with complex needs. We have developed continuous provision within the nursery which creates a calm and focused learning environment and the children are independent, self-motivated and resilient learners. Staff have also developed skilled questioning and deepening children's learning through the use of Blooms taxonomy. We will be moving into a new purpose built building in the summer term 2020.

Please contact the Nursery School to reserve a place for a visit or require any further information.
