

Professionals Working With Neurodiverse Parents

Communication, Practice and Safeguarding Awareness
Delivered by Audrey Carty

Audrey Carty is an experienced midwife and safeguarding expert. This training will give you the tools to adapt communication, build trust, and distinguish support needs from safeguarding concerns.

Aims and Objectives:

Equip professionals with the knowledge to respectfully, inclusively, and effectively support neurodiverse parents — including those who may be undiagnosed or who have learning difficulties — by reducing barriers and improving outcomes for the whole family.

By the end of this course you will:

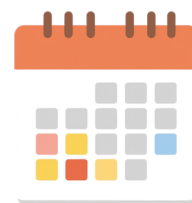

1. Understand Neurodiversity in the Context of Parenting
2. Reflect on Professional Attitudes and Systemic Barriers
3. Build Trusting and Collaborative Relationships
4. Communicate Effectively and Inclusively
5. Make Reasonable Adjustments in Practice
6. Recognise and Respond to Risk Without Pathologising
7. Safeguarding: Apply Learning to Local Scenario
